

School of Policy Studies

Director

Queen's University is seeking a strong leader with national visibility to serve as the Director of the School of Policy Studies. This is a renewable five-year term starting July 1, 2009.

The School of Policy Studies at Queen's University is widely acknowledged as a leading centre for advanced education, research, debate and interaction with professional communities in the fields of public administration, public policy and industrial relations. The School offers the Master of Public Administration and Master of Industrial Relations, which aim to develop leaders who have the skills to translate commitment into action. The School has outstanding faculty, fellows and students; and its research and symposia through 10 Centres, Institutes and Programs make important contributions to the policy and industrial relations debates in this country. The new Director will sustain the School's collegial and creative atmosphere and record of excellence while enhancing the strong links already established with the wider industrial relations and policy community. The faculty will continue to grow along with the size of the student body to meet an increased need for skilled professionals in Canada's public and private organizations.

Details about the School of Policy Studies and a position description can be found on its website: www.queensu.ca/sps

Applications will be reviewed starting on March 12, 2009 and continue until the position is filled. Send applications to:

Chair, Search Committee
Director, School of Policy Studies
c/o School of Graduate Studies and Research
Queen's University
Gordon Hall, Room 425
Kingston, Ontario, Canada
K7L 3N6

Or email applications to: deansgsr@queensu.ca

In accordance with Canadian immigration requirements, the advertisement for the position is directed first to Canadian citizens and permanent residents. Queen's University is committed to employment equity and welcomes applications from all qualified women and men, including visible minorities, Aboriginal people, persons with disabilities, gay men and lesbians. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.